

Bad debts

1 box

Over the years Hill let various individuals borrow money from him. He usually required a promissory note and interest. Some notes proved worthless, though correspondence attached to them and other information filed with them were frequently used in attempts to recover. The documents in this box cover most of his business career and the period of retirement until his death.