

Crookston Agric. College

Sept. 17, 1908

Hill's part in establishing the college is mentioned in his address at the dedication of Stephens Hall. He stated, "These four hundred and fifty acres upon which your college is now about to be opened....I had reserved for another purpose. It might become valuable, but I felt that it would be of greater value as the starting point of an agricultural farm in the Red River Valley."