

Harris, Geo. W.

November 9, 1909

George W. Harris to James J. Hill.

Believes the public should be informed about the railroads by "continuous, persistent, advertisements in the daily papers" and not by information "hidden behind anonymous or subsidized articles, but by advertisements, stamped as such and offered to the people at large for their consideration and setting forth the salient points in the railroad case."

General correspondence     r     date