

Indians of North America      March 11, 1899

W.C.Hervey to J.J.Hill.

"At the Trans-Mississippi Exposition and Indian Congress held at Omaha in 1898, there were gathered, under the direction of the Government, representatives of most of the Indian tribes of the United States.

Photographs..were .. taken by the official photographer of the Exposition, and from these a selection has been made of the best types of thirty-four different tribes... The Minneapolis Public Library has just placed an order for a full set, which consists of about one hundred prints.
