

Minnesota Historical Society Feb. 6, 1903

Warren Upham to Hill

Believes he should inform Hill that Brower [J.V.?] has accused Upham of trespassing on historical subjects which Brower claims that the Society should reserve for him. My offense being in writing for this Society the address given before the meetings in January, March, and October of last year on Groseilliers and Radisson, the earliest white men in Minnesota, and on the progress of discovery of the Mississippi River."
