Sterling to JJH, Telegram, General Corresp.

Appears to be about James N.'s problems at Yale and Sterling's attempts to help: "Faculty as a body possess the only power to restore and are constitutionally jealous of interference. The president has really not the power and can only persuade. He promises to champion the matter before the faculty when it meets in Sept., President meantime writing and urging members to favorable decision he promises to do all he can in all friendliness to you. To Jimmie, to your family and to me personally. He cannot promise
