

Tuck, Edward

December 28, 1910

Edward Tuck to James J. Hill.

Is glad to know that Hill is "hopeful of some improvement in public sentiment towards the railroads and in the future value of the best located lines."

Is anxiously awaiting the decision in the Minnesota Rate Case.

States that he "was much interested in your address read at the dinner of the Canadian Society in New York. The most important speech which my father delivered in Congress 60 years ago was in favor of reciprocity with Canada. Your arguments were clear and convincing to any fair minded man."

Voices his disappointment in the Taft administration and states, "And on top of all this to ask Lafollette's advice on the appointment to the Supreme Court! Taft is surely lacking both in political and in common sense.."
