

Wolvin, A. B.

April 12, 1899

A. B. Wolvin to J. J. Hill.

Will not be able to accompany Hill on the trip across on the "Paris," because of an obstacle in the way of delivering steamers to the Federal Steel Company. States that, "in justice to the people who have been so very friendly to me during my whole experience of some thirty years in the vessel business I certainly could not now act in a manner so hastily as would incur their displeasure to say nothing of the financial obligation that still exists." General correspondence by date.
