Community Social Service Act, 1979-1980

The Community Social Service Act (CSSA) was enacted in 1979 (Minn. Stat. 1979 s256E.01). The act provides that services defined as "community social services" are to be administered by the boards of county commissioners under the supervision of the Commissioner of Public Welfare. The county boards, rather than the Department of Public Welfare, now fund or operate chemical dependency programs and received the authority to enter into purchase of service agreements with private agencies. The Department of Public Welfare was responsible for developing and enforcing guidelines for chemical dependency services and personnel.

Consolidated Chemical Dependency Treatment Fund, 1985-1992

This proposal, developed in 1985, combines a number of separate existing state accounts for chemical dependency treatment, including: medical assistance, general assistance medical care, state hospital chemical dependency programs, and state and federal grant funds for chemical dependency. Under this proposal, chemical dependency treatment funds would be allocated to counties and Indian reservations based on a population and income based formula. Those funds would be matched at a certain percentage by the counties. Each county would be responsible for assessment and referral of their clients. Some funds were also set in a “reserve fund” for Indian reservations. All licensed agencies providing covered services would be reimbursed using a system similar to that of the medical assistance program. Chemical dependency services mandated and funded under the Community Social Service Act (CSSA) would not be covered by the CDTF. The 1985 bill did not pass. A rider was placed on the Omnibus Health, Welfare, and Corrections budget bill calling for “a study of methods for implementing a consolidated chemical dependency treatment fund.” The idea of consolidation of services and expenses was revived in 1990.

"Governor's Bill," 1974-1981

The "Governor's Bill" (Minn. Stat. 1976 c125) is "an act relating to treatment for alcohol and drug abuse; providing for programs of intervention and treatment for employees, Native Americans, and underserved groups; providing funding for detoxification programs, half-way houses, and nonresidential programs; appropriating money; amending Minnesota Statutes 1974, Section 254A.02, Subdivision 1, and by adding subdivisions; and Chapter 254A, by adding sections." The bill and act are called the "Governor's Bill" because it was developed in response to Governor Anderson's Program on Drug and Alcohol Abuse. The stated intent of the program was to "develop a capability to intervene in the early stages..." of alcoholism and other drug abuse problems... "with special emphasis on purchasing services from the private sector."
