Where Prince and Minnesota made rock 'n' roll history—a glorious look at one of rock's most storied clubs and the hundreds of musicians who took the stage there.

One of the longest running clubs in American rock 'n' roll—and most recognizable venues in Minnesota—First Avenue in Minneapolis finally gets the rock-star treatment it deserves in print. This book chronicles the club's storied past, beginning with its impressive inaugural show in April 1970 (Joe Cocker's "Mad Dogs & Englishmen" tour) and through its oft-maligned disco era of the late 1970s. In the 1980s, it earned global attention as the hub of Prince's "Purple Rain" and the incubator for widely revered, wild-eyed indie-rock bands such as the Replacements, Hüsker Dü, Soul Asylum, and Babes in Toyland. More recently, it survived corporate competitors, bankruptcy, and a bitter ownership battle to become one of the most successful independent clubs in the country and ground zero to Minneapolis's thriving community of hip-hop and indie-rock acts. Amidst all that history, the book is interlaced with anecdotes, quotes, and occasionally cloudy memories from

"The club has survived so many changes in downtown Minneapolis and in the music industry against many odds to become a worldwide landmark among musicians and music fans. That's an incredible testament to all the people who put years of their lives into that place, and a testament to the music scene around it. It's still a great scene, still a great club. Maybe as good as it's ever been." —BOB MOULD, Hüsker Dü/Sugar/solo artist

FROM THE BOOK . . .

My first time through that curved entryway was to see Anthrax and Metal Church in 1986, at the ripe metalhead age of 14. Driving over there from east St. Paul with my friend since birth Mark Dueffert—who still often goes to shows with me despite having to get up early to deliver mail—was scary and exhilarating. The club's all-black interior was especially dark and grimy in those days and extra intimidating, or maybe it just seemed that way. Boldly, Mark and I got right up front and sat on ledges that used to be attached to the stage. We sang into Joey Belladonna's microphone when Anthrax encored with "Anarchy in the U.K." At the end of Metal Church's set, bassist Duke Erickson unstrapped his instrument and started swinging it around wildly, striking Mark hard in the head. Like Beavis to Butt-head, I guffawed as my friend fought off tears from the pain. I thought I had just witnessed one of the coolest things of my life.

Mark turned out fine, but I've never been the same.

Swedish American Holiday Traditions

PATRICE JOHNSON

Christmas traditions, particularly those involving food, often honor our ancestors. Throughout the Midwest where Swedish immigrants settled, the dishes placed on the julbord (Christmas table) tell stories about who we are, where we come from, and where we are heading.

In exploring these holiday customs, Patrice Johnson begins with her own family's Christmas Eve gathering, which involves a combination of culinary traditions: allspice-scented meatballs, Norwegian lefse served Swedish style (warm with butter), and the American interloper, macaroni and cheese. Just as she tracks down the meanings behind why her family celebrates as it does, she reaches into the lives and histories of other Swedish Americans with their own stories, their own versions of traditional recipes, their own joys of the season. The result is a fascinating exploration of the Swedish holiday calendar and its American translation.

Featured dishes include yellow pea soup (ärtsoppa) and Swedish pancakes (Svenska plättar); assorted Swedish cookies like pepparkakor, rosettes, and meringues; meatballs with pickled cucumber; the julhög, a breakfast pyramid of bread, cheese, fruit, and cookies; and so much more. Come, raise a glass of

Pepparkakor

Faye Olson, Brooklyn Park, MN

"My grandmother's. These keep well in covered tin."

Makes about 300 small cookies

1½ cups butter

2 cups sugar

1 cup molasses

1½ tablespoons ground ginger

1½ tablespoons cinnamon

1 tablespoon ground cloves

1½ cups whipping cream, whipped

1 tablespoon baking soda dissolved

in 1 tablespoon water

9 cups all-purpose flour

Beat butter and sugar in very large mixing bowl until light and fluffy. Add molasses and spices, blending gradually. Stir in whipped cream and baking soda dissolved in water; mix in flour until well blended. Cover and let stand overnight.

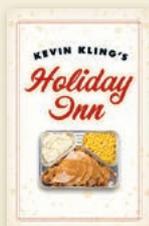

Knead dough and divide into manageable pieces. On a lightly floured work surface, roll each piece very thin. Cut dough into desired shapes and place ¾-inch apart on parchment-lined baking sheets. Bake in 375-degree oven for 7 to 9 minutes. Cool on rack.

Tip from Faye: "I sometimes just make small balls and flatten with a glass."

From smörgåsbord and St. Lucia processions to Christmas Eve gatherings with dear family and friends, Swedish Americans are linked through the generations by a legacy of meatballs and lutfisk.

SIGHTS, SOUNDS, SOUL

The Twin Cities Through the Lens of Charles Chamblis

PHOTOGRAPHY BY CHARLES CHAMBLIS
TEXT BY DAVU SERU

During the 1970s and '80s, photographer Charles Chamblis captured the vibrant social and artistic life of the Twin Cities African American community. Musicians and other artists are shown performing, dancing, and interacting with enthusiastic audiences at once-thriving but now lost clubs, such as the Taste Show Lounge, Riverview Supper Club, Fox Trap, Nacirema Club, and others on Minneapolis's north and south sides. Among the legendary soul, funk, and R&B acts depicted are Flyte Tyme, Prophets of Peace, Terry Lewis, Jimmy Jam, Morris Day, Prince, and many other influential musicians who helped establish the so-called Minneapolis Sound. Beyond the nightlife, Chamblis's portraits, images of family gatherings and weddings, fashion photography, landscapes, and photos of community events offer intimate and rare glimpses into the life of African Americans in the Twin Cities at these particular moments in time.

Contemporary writer and artist Davu Seru brings these photos to life with intro-

WHERE ARE ALL THE MINNESOTANS?

KARLYN COLEMAN
ILLUSTRATIONS BY CARRIE
HARTMAN

In the Midwest, winter means freezing temperatures, shorter days, and piles of snow. For some, the logical response is to curl up under the blankets and hibernate until spring.

But wait: where are all the Minnesotans? Outside, of course! First, bundle up: a warm coat and a hat and gloves, and you're all set. Now, squeeze into an ice-fishing shack to try your luck, or skate on a lake and swipe at a puck. Grab a sled and all your friends and tackle a snow-covered hill. Or how about a candlelit ski, with the moon shining brightly overhead?

Think parades are only for summer? Not so: a winter carnival brings folks to watch cheerful floats and marching bands. And kites can fly before it's spring: their bright shapes and flowing tails dance above a frozen lake, waving and dipping in the brisk breeze. With these activities and many more, Minnesotans make the most of the wintry months.

But what if the temperature drops and the wind starts to blow? Safety comes first: now everyone's home. It's time to hunker down by the fire, bake cookies, read stories, and dream of spring. And where do you suppose all the Minnesotans will be then?

THE LINCOLN DEL COOKBOOK

Best-Loved Recipes from the Legendary Bakery and Deli

WENDI ZELKIN ROSENSTEIN WITH KIT NAYLOR

Foreword by Thomas Friedman

For Jewish and non-Jewish customers alike, the Lincoln Del was a Minneapolis version of Cheers—at the Del everybody knew your name. Folks hardly minded waiting in line for the fresh caraway rye, the cabbage borscht, the corned beef sandwiches, or the towering strawberry shortcake because every visit was like a family reunion, complete with warm embraces, recounted stories, boisterous jokes, and—of course—plenty of amazing food.

From modest beginnings as a bakery in 1930s north Minneapolis to a local chain of three bustling restaurants in St. Louis Park and Bloomington, the Lincoln Del was a neighborhood institution for decades. These popular spots drew visitors from all over the metro and across the state, and even years later patrons nostalgically recall the tasty baked goods, the generously portioned sandwiches, and the sense of belonging that enveloped everyone who walked through the door.

Tess and Moishe Berenberg ran the St. Louis Park Lincoln Del; since the Del closed in 2000, their granddaughter Wendi Zelkin Rosenstein has been fielding requests for recipes from fans far and wide. Kit Naylor is a founding mother of Algonquin Hotdish, an informal organization of Minnesota artists, writers, designers, and photographers. Long before Thomas Friedman became an award-winning journalist, his mother was a bookkeeper at the Lincoln Del.

Cabbage Borscht

Yield: 6 servings

2 tablespoons butter, vegetable oil, clarified butter (ghee), or, even better, schmaltz
 ½ pound beef shank bones with marrow
 1 pound rib eye steak or brisket, not too lean
 5 cups unsalted beef stock or broth
 2 medium tomatoes, chopped
 ⅔ cup ketchup
 ¼ cup sugar or 1 packet Truvia or other sweetener, to taste
 1 teaspoon sour salt or citric acid
 ½ teaspoon pepper
 2 pounds cabbage, sliced in bite-size pieces

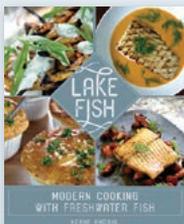

Warm butter or oil in 4-quart Dutch oven or stock pot over medium heat. Brown shank bones and steak or brisket. Carefully add beef stock, tomatoes, ketchup, sweetener, sour salt, and pepper to pot; stir. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 1 hour.

Remove meat from pot; cool slightly. Discard skin and fat. Cut meat into bite-size pieces. Return meat and any bones still filled with marrow to the pot. Stir in the cabbage, bring the mixture to a boil, then reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes or until cabbage is crisp-tender.

THE NORTHERN GARDENER

From Apples to Zinnias

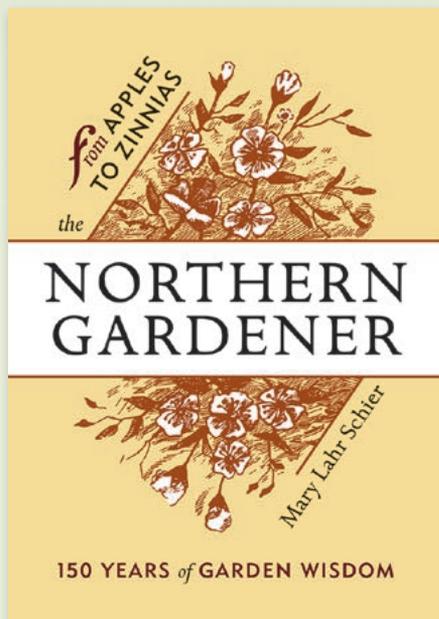

150 Years of Garden Wisdom

MARY LAHR SCHIER

Tips and tricks for the northern gardener collected from 150 years of Minnesota State Horticultural Society publications. Illustrated with color photos and vintage artwork.

Gardening in a northern clime has its own unique set of challenges. Yet, despite the shorter growing season, gardening remains a popular passion for millions of green thumbs in Minnesota and the Upper Midwest. Northern gardeners can successfully grow a wide range of beautiful ornamentals and tasty food crops.

In The Northern Gardener, Mary Lahr Schier brings together a rich and varied collection of wisdom for cold-climate gardeners. The tips, tricks, and lore, presented with period illustrations and glorious photos, are gleaned in part from the pages of the journals and magazines of the 150-year-old Minnesota State Horticultural Society, including Minnesota Horticulturist magazine and its current incarnation, Northern Gardener. ## FROM THE BOOK . . .

Landscaping Around a Snout House

“Snout house” is the somewhat loveable term given to homes in which the garage juts forward and is the most dominant element of the home’s front. These are practical homes in northern climates (I lived in one for seventeen years and understand their appeal), but from a landscaping perspective, they present challenges. Sometimes they are just plain ugly.

How do you design a welcoming entry and landscape when the front door is around the corner and sometimes in the shade of that big ol’ garage? Some homeowners embrace the garage, adding trim and other elements to make it as attractive architecturally as the rest of the home. They add formal-looking containers or trellises that frame the garage door.

Others do what I did, which is to create a small courtyard near the front door to counterbalance the garage. In my case, this involved adding a row of boulders to create a tier that extended about a third of the way from the front door to the street. (The yard had a downward slope toward the street, so the tier looked logical.) On that tier, I planted small shrubs and native grasses, which provided a bit of screening, and then added a round patio on the left side of the sidewalk that went around from the driveway to the front door. The right side of the sidewalk contained a four-foot-wide planting area, which was original to the house and had been planted with shrubs, a climbing rose, and annual flowers. Adding more visual weight to the area around the front entry told visitors, “ignore that big white garage door and look over here!”

OUR MINNESOTA STATE CAPITOL

From Groundbreaking through Restoration

DENIS P. GARDNER

Foreword by Governor Mark Dayton

The Minnesota State Capitol is both an architectural masterpiece and a revered public building. This beautiful Renaissance Revival structure is the heart of the state's civic life, a place for celebrations, demonstrations, arguments, and accomplishments. It's where history happens.

Completed in 1905, the capitol is a grand building on a grand scale, and it reflected Minnesota's growing cosmopolitanism. Noted architect Cass Gilbert won the design competition and then fought ferociously to see his vision built.

At construction, the capitol was a marvel of modern engineering, with its own heating plant and the second-largest self-supported marble dome in the world. And more than a century later, after a meticulous renovation in 2015–17, the building glows again with its original beauty.

This book includes stories of the capitol's construction and restoration, laborers and craftspeople, fine art and furnishings, and politics and protests. It features remarkable photographs, recently saved from a dumpster, that document the original construction. And it celebrates this beloved building's continued life at the center of the state's civic culture.

ORDERS, RETURNS, CUSTOMER SERVICE

► INDIVIDUALS

Individuals who wish to purchase MNHS Press books should visit shop.mnhs.org or call the toll-free line of the Minnesota History Center Museum Store at 1-866-664-4786. Minnesota Historical Society members will receive 10% off their purchase.

► RESELLERS, LIBRARIES, SCHOOLS, AND NONPROFITS IN THE USA

MNHS Press handles U.S. distribution through Ingram Publisher Services (IPS).

Account Setup You may already conduct business with IPS or its sister company, Ingram Book Company. If so, you should already have an account established, and no further action is required for account setup.

If not, an account with IPS should be requested. Please visit <http://www.ingramcontent.com/> and click on "Retailers," then "Get Started" to begin the application process. When you reach the Retail Store questions, be sure to answer "Yes" to "Are you interested in direct pricing from exclusive Ingram-distributed publishers?" After completing the online questionnaire, you will be emailed a welcome packet with a few forms to finalize the process. Feel free to contact the IPS Customer Service Department at the number below if you need assistance.

Placing an Order Active customers may order on ipage, Ingram's business-to-business website. To sign up for ipage, visit <http://ipage.ingramcontent.com> and click on the registration tab to begin the subscription process. When using ipage, you can place orders for MNHS Press products by signing on to ipage, clicking on the IPS tab at the top, and using the IPS cart. You must place all MNHS Press items in the IPS cart for publisher-direct pricing. If you will be placing your orders electronically, you will need to use the IPS SAN Number 6318630 to ensure you get your full MNHS Press direct discount. Orders must be placed through IPS to receive publisher-direct discounts.

Invoicing Purchases made through IPS will generate an IPS invoice. Account statements may come from Ingram Book Company if you purchase from several Ingram companies.

IPS Contact Information MNHS Press has a dedicated phone line at IPS for questions, order placement, order tracking, and additional inquiries.

Minnesota Historical Society Press
Phone: 844-841-0257
