

CULTURALLY RELEVANT PEDAGOGY USING PRIMARY SOURCES

Tenet 2 in an Elementary Classroom

COMPARING MAPS

Maps can tell us a lot about a culture or people. Fill in each column as you analyze an aerial view map and a bird's eye view map.

Bird's Eye Map	Aerial View Map
The first things I notice are...	The first things I notice are...
The person that made this map thought _____ was really important. I can tell because...	The person that made this map thought _____ was really important. I can tell because...
The aerial view map is useful because it shows...	The street view map is useful because it shows...
What is missing in this map?  What is hard to know from an aerial view map?	What is missing in this map?  What is hard to know from a street view map?
How do you think this image was captured?  What is the perspective?	How do you think this image was captured?  What is the perspective?

ANALYZING STUDENT MAPS

Maps can tell us a lot about our own culture – who we are and what matters most to us. Complete this handout as you study a classmate’s map and learn more about him/her.

Partner name: _____	Aerial Map <input type="checkbox"/>	Bird’s Eye Map <input type="checkbox"/>
Taking a step back, the first things I notice are...
Upon closer inspection (magnifying glass), the details I notice are...
My partner thought _____ was really important. I can tell because...
What is missing in this map that might be important?  Is there anything on this map that your map does not include?
What is the perspective of this map?		